ABSTRACT

Designed to make Duke University's collection of OECD (Organisation for Economic Co-Operation and Development) publications and data more readily accessible, this guide is divided into the following sections: Introduction to OECD and Its Publications; General References about OECD and Its Activities; Indexes and Other Sources for Accessing OECD Publications; Types, Titles, and Availability of OECD Publications; Useful Addresses and Telephone Numbers and Free Information on New OECD Publications; and a Title Index. Most of the periodical and annual publications of the OECD are listed in the fourth section. Each entry includes (1) previous title(s) if any; (2) call number; (3) holdings at Duke University; (4) accession number for analytical abstract and microfiche holdings from the Index to International Statistics (IIS); (5) a brief abstract of the publication; and (6) related publications, if any. FOREWORD

Most OECD publications and data are available at Duke University. However, locating specific titles or statistical information can be time consuming and frustrating because these publications are processed and housed in multiple locations. In addition, no single index is adequate for locating all OECD materials. This guide is designed to make these publications more readily accessible. Please refer to it when seeking OECD information.

IMPORTANT FEATURES OF THIS GUIDE

Section IV lists most of the periodical and annual publications of the OECD. These publications are numbered and indexed. Each entry includes (1) previous title(s) if any, (2) call number, (3) holdings at Duke, (4) accession number for analytical abstract and microfiche holdings from the Index to International Statistics (IIS), (5) a brief abstract about the publication and (6) related publications, if any. Please note that the IIS accession number can be invaluable when searching for specific data. This is because the IIS abstract will indicate the type of statistical information found in each publication often including the pages on which this information can be found (see explanation of IIS in Section III).

If there is an asterisk (*) next to the IIS accession number, this means the publication is available only in microfiche format in the IIS microfiche collection.

CAVEATS: (1) The holdings information may not be accurate because of discrepancies in record keeping. However, the dates listed should be available. All the titles listed continue to be received unless otherwise indicated. (2) OECD statistical publications will frequently include retrospective analyses. It is not uncommon for a recent edition of a given title to provide unexpectedly statistics going back 10 years more than any other edition. Unless each separate edition is checked, it is difficult to note the earliest data available. (3) When browsing in a specified call number area, please look in both the standard book section and the oversized book section. The OECD tends to issue related titles in different book sizes. (4) The call numbers may change because of recataloging.

Every attempt has been made to be accurate in compiling this guide. However, errors may be found. Please notify the Documents Desk if an error comes to your attention. This guide will be updated periodically.

MEMBERS

(24 COUNTRIES)

Australia, Austria, Belgium, Canada, Denmark, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, Japan, Luxembourg, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, United Kingdom and the United States.

Yugoslavia participates in the work of the Organisation with a special status.

ESTABLISHED

30th September 1961 by the Convention on the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (signed 14th December 1960) ; successor body to Organisation for European Economic Co-operation (OEEC), established 16th April 1948.

AIMS

Promote economic and social welfare throughout the OECD area by co-ordinating Member countries' policies to this end ; contribute to the good functioning of the world economy notably by stimulating and harmonising its Members' efforts in favour of developing countries.

The supreme body of the Organisation is the Council composed of one representative for each Member country. It meets either at Heads of Permanent Delegations level (about once a week) under the Chairmanship of the Secretary-General or at Ministerial level (usually once a year) under the Chairmanship of a Minister elected annually. Decisions and Recommendations are adopted by mutual agreement of all members of the Council.

The Council is assisted by an Executive Committee composed of 14 members of the Council designated annually by the latter.

As the Organisation's activities cover practically all aspects of economic and social policy, the major part of its work is prepared and carried out in numerous specialized committees and working parties of which there exist about two hundred.

Thus, the Organisation comprises Committees for Economic Policy ; Economic and Development Review ; Development Assistance (DAC) ; Trade ; Invisible Transactions ; Financial Markets ; Fiscal Affairs ; Restrictive Business Practices ; Consumer Policy ; Tourism ; Maritime Transport ; International Investment and Multinational Enterprises ; Energy Policy ; Industry ; Steel ; Scientific and Technological Policy ; Education ; Manpower and Social Affairs ; Environment ; Agriculture ; Fisheries, etc. Moreover, there exists a High Level Group on Commodities.

The various committees and other bodies are, as a rule composed of civil servants coming either from capitals or from the Permanent Delegations to OECD which are established as normal diplomatic missions and are headed by Ambassadors. They are serviced by an international Secretariat (headed by the Secretary-General of the Organisation), the structure of which is geared to the requirements of these bodies.

Autonomous and semi-autonomous bodies set up in the framework of the Organisation

THE OECD INTERNATIONAL ENERGY AGENCY (IEA)

The International Energy Agency is an autonomous body which was established in 1974 within the framework of the OECD to implement the International Energy Programme adopted by the Participating Countries on 18th November 1974.

It carries out a comprehensive programme of energy co-operation among twenty-one of the OECD's twenty-four Member countries, the basic elements of which are :

- co-operation among IEA Participating Countries to reduce excessive dependence on oil through conservation, development of alternative energy sources and energy research development ;
- an information system on the international oil market as well as consultation with oil companies ;
- co-operation with oil producing and other oil consuming countries with a view to developing a stable international energy trade as well as the rational management and use of world energy resources in the interests of all countries ;
- a plan to prepare Participating Countries against the risk of a major disruption of oil supplies and to share available oil in the event of an emergency.

Participating Countries in the Agency are : Australia, Austria, Belgium, Canada, Denmark, Germany, Greece, Ireland, Italy, Japan, Luxembourg, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, United Kingdom, United States. The Commission of the European Communities is represented.

THE OECD NUCLEAR ENERGY AGENCY (NEA)

Set up in 1958 (as European Nuclear Energy Agency), the Nuclear Energy Agency now groups all Member countries of OECD, except New Zealand.

Objectives : The main purpose of the Agency is to promote international co-operation within the OECD area for the development and application of nuclear power for peaceful purposes through international research and development projects and exchange of scientific and technical experience and information. The Agency also maintains a continual survey, with the co-operation of other organisations, notably the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA), of world uranium resources, production and demand, and of economic and technical aspects of the nuclear fuel cycle.

An expanding part of the Agency's work is devoted to safety and regulatory aspects of nuclear energy : safety of installations, radiation protection, radioactive waste management and the setting up of a uniform legislative regime for nuclear liability and insurance.

THE OECD DEVELOPMENT CENTRE

The Development Centre of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development was established by decision of the OECD Council on 23rd October 1962.

The purpose of the Centre is to bring together the knowledge and experience available in Member countries of both economic development and the formulation and execution of general policies of economic aid; to adapt such knowledge and experience to the actual needs of countries or regions in the process of development and to put the results at the disposal of the countries by appropriate means.

The Centre has a special and autonomous position within the OECD which enables it to enjoy scientific independence in the execution of its task. Nevertheless, the Centre can draw upon the experience and knowledge available in the OECD in the development field.

All OECD Member countries are members of the Centre except New Zealand.

THE CENTRE FOR EDUCATIONAL RESEARCH AND INNOVATION (CERI)

The Centre for Educational Research and Innovation was set up in 1968 to promote and assist the development of research activities in the field of education, and to carry out advanced experiments designed to test innovations in education and stimulate research and development.

All the Member countries of OECD and Yugoslavia are members of CERI.

THE EUROPEAN CONFERENCE OF MINISTERS OF TRANSPORT (ECMT)

The ECMT is an inter-governmental organisation independent from OECD, but its Secretariat is attached, from an administrative point of view, to that of the OECD, which distributes its publications.

The European Conference of Ministers of Transport (ECMT), established by a Protocol signed in Brussels on 17th October 1963, constitutes a forum for the Ministers of Transport of 19 European countries[1]. The work of the Council of Ministers is prepared by a Committee of Deputies.

The purposes of the Conference are :

a) to take whatever measures may be necessary to achieve, at general or regional level, the most efficient use and rational development of European inland transport of international importance ;

b) to co-ordinate and promote the activities of international organisations concerned with European inland transport, taking into account the work of supranational authorities in this field.

Major problems which are being studied by the ECMT include : transport policy ; the financial situation and organisation of railways and road transport ; problems concerning inland waterway transport and combined transport ; development of European trunk lines of communication ; problems concerning urban transport ; the prevention of road accidents and co-ordination, at European level, of road traffic rules and road signs and signals ; traffic trends and long-term traffic forecasts.

Moreover, the ECMT organises Round Tables and Symposia. Their conclusions are considered by the competent organs of the Conference, under the authority of the Committee of Deputies, so that the latter may formulate proposals for policy decisions to be submitted to the Ministers.

In addition, the ECMT is equipped with a computerised Documentation Center to which inquiries concerning transport economics may be addressed.

B. Nature of OECD publications (problems, peculiarities) and collection policy at Duke.

OECD publications can be difficult to locate in Duke's libraries or in any library. Among the problems encountered are:

(1) Current publications are subject to delays in being received unless they appear in the Index to International Statistics microfiche collection. This is because Duke gets many OECD publications directly from Paris and shipments are sent on a quarterly basis only. In general, however, Perkins Library has a standing order for "For Sale" publications of OECD. This means the vast majority of "For Sale" publications arrive automatically. If you need an OECD publication sooner than Duke can provide it, contact either the Public Documents and Maps Department or the OECD Publications and Information Center in Washington (see address and telephone section).

(2) Titles of various publications have changed over the years. When looking for older or more current data, a researcher must find out what changes there might have been if any. This is also true for the official names of the organizations sponsoring these publications. (See Section III)

(3) There are occasional discrepancies in the precise notation of titles. A title cited by a researcher may not correctly correspond to the actual title as listed in the OECD Catalogue of Publications or in the catalogue of Perkins Library.

(4) Often publications are said to be published by OECD, when in fact they are issued by related organizations. Most often these organizations are the International Energy Agency (IEA), the Nuclear Energy Agency (NEA), the Centre for Educational Research and Innovation (CERI), and the European Conference of Ministers of Transport (ECMT). OECD often cooperates with other organizations in publishing. However, if OECD does not take primary responsibility for the publication, the publication will not be listed under OECD in a library catalogue.

(5) Many OECD publications are considered internal documents which are not for sale. Although they may be cited by researchers, libraries cannot purchase them. A selected few of these "not for sale" publications come to Duke free as part of the library's standing order. Perkins Library, upon request, will seek to acquire "not for sale" publications by directly contacting OECD.

II. GENERAL REFERENCES ABOUT OECD AND ITS ACTIVITIES

A. Materials received from the OECD Information Service at the Washington office.

The OECD Information service provides answers to general or specific enquiries on the current work, aims and working methods of OECD. General information booklets on the Organisation's work may be obtained free on request from the OECD Information Service

III. INDEXES AND OTHER SOURCES FOR ACCESSING OECD PUBLICATIONS

The following should be consulted when trying to locate OECD publications and data on specific subject matter:

A. The OECD CATALOGUE OF PUBLICATIONS (located in the "OECD publication list box" in the Documents Room).
This catalogue will list sales publications of the OECD organized by subject with an index by titles, authors, and series. [Important to note are the ISBN or ISSN numbers for each title. These can assist librarians in locating the book in the OCLC database if problems arise.] This is an identifying tool. To locate a publication, you must find it in the other tools listed.

B. The card catalog(s) at Perkins Library.
To use effectively, you must know the precise author, title, or corporate author. Consult the OECD Catalogue of Publications above. When looking for subject matter which you think may be covered by the OECD, the card catalog is not the best tool although it may be used. Ask the Reference Desk for assistance if you have problems.

C. The processing catalog of OECD publications (in Documents Room). This is the most complete record of OECD publications received at Duke whether cataloged, in backlog, or uncataloged. Ask the Documents Desk for assistance.

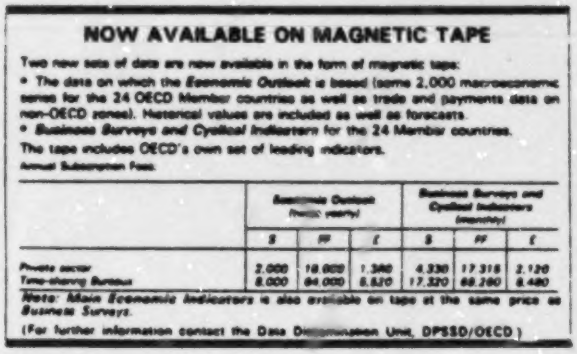
D. "TSDB" (ask Reference Desk for locations at Duke).
This is an online library acquisition tool which you can use. Use it to search for publications at Duke by "Keyword in title". When you are not certain about your title this can be invaluable. It also provides a kind of subject search by "Keyword in title." Otherwise, it is simply an online listing of "recent" Duke acquisitions which can give you a call number or a backlog number if your publication is not yet cataloged but nevertheless in the library. Ask the Reference Desk for assistance.

E. (IIS) Index to International Statistics (located in the Public Documents Dept. at Perkins Library).
This is the best tool for locating data in publications issued by OECD. There is an index by title, by subject, by international organization (issuing, source), by statistical categories (i.e., country data, age, commodity, individual company or enterprise, industry, sex), by publication number. The abstract section will reveal what statistical data can be found in the publication and on what page(s). The microfiche collection which accompanies this index is in the Public Documents Dept. 99% of the publications listed in this index for OECD are readily available. NOTE: The index and microfiche collection began publication in January 1983. However it includes data for earlier years and compilations of historical data. The publications are reproduced in microfiche format in their entirety.

F. Subject specific indexes (Ask Reference Desk for assistance).
Indexes such as PAIS, Predicasts, Energy Research Abstracts, Selected Water Resources Abstracts, etc. will reference OECD publications if they happen to focus on the subject of the indexes.

G. Online Databases.
OECD data and references to OECD publications can be extracted by the use of commercial online databases. Ask the Reference Desk about information concerning the use of these tools and fee charges.

H. Data available on magnetic tape from OECD.



NOW AVAILABLE ON MAGNETIC TAPE

Two new sets of data are now available in the form of magnetic tape:

- The data on which the Economic Outlook is based (some 2,000 macroeconomic series for the 24 OECD Member countries as well as trade and payments data on non-OECD zones). Historical values are included as well as forecasts.
- Business Surveys and Cyclical Indicators for the 24 Member countries.

The tape includes OECD's own set of leading indicators.

Annual Subscription Fees:

	Economic Outlook (twice yearly)			Business Surveys and Cyclical Indicators (monthly)
	$	FF	£	$	FF	£
Private sector	2.000	10.000	1.360	4.330	17.315	2.120
Time-sharing Bureaux	8.000	64.000	5.520	17.320	69.260	8.480

Note: Main Economic Indicators is also available on tape at the same price as Business Surveys.

2. Monographic Series
There are several monographic series issued by OECD. In some instances the individual title of a monograph in series can be found in the library catalogues. Often it is necessary to know the name of the series to locate an individual title. If difficulty arises consult the OECD Catalogue of Publications in the Documents Room in order to identify both title and series. Otherwise the Index to International Statistics can help identify those titles and series which include statistical data.

The following are examples of monographic series.
